MELLON DEMANDS REDUCTION OF "EXCESSIVE SURTAX RATE"

Secretary Calls "Confiscatory Estate Tax Rates,"
"Unworkable Gift Tax" and Publicity Provision of Revenue Act of 1924 "Inconsistent with Economic Laws," and Urges Greater Economy in Gov't—Public Debt Now $21,250,000,000, with Europe Owning U. S. $10,559,929,727.

By ROBERT S. THORNBURGH
International News Service Staff Correspondent.
Washington, Dec. 4.—Declaring that the revenue act of 1924 has failed to provide necessary changes in the tax system that will assure national prosperity, Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, in his annual report to Congress yesterday, recommended a far-reaching program of reform.
While the real fight of the new Coolidge Administration for its reorganization of the taxation system is not expected to be launched until the Sixty-fourth Congress, Mellon took occasion to outline to the short session what he considers the dangerous flaws in the 1924 law.

Provisions, said to be "inconsistent with economic laws," follow:
1. Excessive surtax rates.
2. Confiscatory estate tax rates.
3. Unworkable gift tax alleged to be "a harrier legitimate business."
4. Publicity provision of law characterized as "a mistake of policy" and "damaging to revenue."

Secretary Mellon has principal of the tax program, Secretary of the greater economy in the recommended various and currency reforms of the act of 1924, and outlined the status of the "obligations" owed to the State.

VETERANS DRAWING $6,000,000 MONTHLY

Washington, Dec. 3.—Veterans of the World War are drawing approximately $6,000,- 000 in disability compensation every month, Director Frank T.
Hines, of the United States veterans bureau, declared in his annual report of Congress.
Although over 35,000 new compensation claims were filed during the last fiscal year, Hines said that only 179,000 soldiers are drawing government allowances against 183,- 000 June 30, 1923.

Rotarians Hear A Fine Paper On "The Buyer And The Seller" Read

There was a large attendance at the Rotary Club meeting last evening at the Hotel Jordan. Following the regular business routine President Gurney Smith turned the meeting over to Rotarian "Hobe" Callahan, Chairman of the Business Methods Committee.
Chairman "Hobe" then called upon Cecil Bloom, who read a highly instructive paper on "The Buyer and the Seller."

The Chairman then gave an interesting resume of an address he had heard a welfare worker deliver recently at Harrisburg, the moral of which was the exemplification of the Golden Rule in business and between capital and labor.

W. P. Sheeder, made a plea for the Near East Relief in calling the attention of the Rotarians to the fact that next Sunday was Golden Rule Sunday, when all who can possibly do so are asked to contribute of their means to the support of the 100,000 Near East orphan children.

Chairman Nevling of the Entertainment Committee announced Ladies Night for Dec. 17th at the Dwelling Hotel, and promised something really worth while on that occasion.

Russell Shaw of the Fellowship Committee promised 100 per cent attendance at that meeting and said his committee would dig the members up and get them there.

Fiendish Attempt Is Made To Blow Up Well Known Philadelphians

Philadelphia, Dec. 4. (INS.)—Postal inspectors and police are today still without a clue to the persons who sent a bomb through the mails yesterday to Lloyd R. Townsend, electrical contractor. The package containing the infernal machine came while Townsend was not at home.
Mrs. Townsend saw that the return address was fictitious and became suspicious. The package was carefully opened and was found to contain a wooden box with a lid on which was written "pull." The lid was pried open and found to contain sand paper which if pulled open would have ignited the matches in the box, which would have set off the explosive. The bomb was powerful enough to wreck several houses.

FIGURES SHOW MR. WALTER JOHNSON IS CHAMP PITCHER

New York, Dec. 4 (INS.)—American league pitching records, made public today, show that Walter Johnson, Senator's ace in their climb to a penalty, was far and away the best of the Junior circuit's hurlers. He led his rivals in percentage of games won and lost and set the low mark of 2.72 earned runs per game.
Johnson won 23 games and lost 7
during the season, averaging .767.
Herb Pennock, was ranked second in games won and earned runs and Stan Baumgartner, Athletic's Star, was third in both departments.
Johnson fanned 152 batters during 1924.

WEST IN GRIP OF SEVEREST SLEET STORM OF SEASON

Chicago, Dec. 4 (INS.)—The west today was in the grip of the first severe sleet storm of the season which was taking its toll of crippled wires and demoralized traffic.
Entire communities in the Dakotas, Nebraska, Western Kansas and Colorado on which the storm swept down from the mountains today, were cut off from outside communication and fragmentary reports trickling into Chicago told of severely low temperatures and cities encrusted in the ice of frozen rain.

CHARGE PAYMASTER FRAMED HOLD-UP OF LAST SATURDAY

Ebensburg, Pa., Dec. 4.—Arthur Etienne, chief paymaster of the Marion Center Mining Company, and Edward Kelly, formerly a fellow employee are held for court, said to have confessed "framing" the holdup of Etienne last Saturday in which $7,155 was taken. The disguise Kelly was said to have used, including a false beard, and his revolver, were found beneath a boulder on the outskirts of town. Discrepancies between the story told by Etienne and other witnesses led to the arrests.

decided that Mrs. C. V. Sheatsley, Bexley "furnace victim," was committed suicide, it was announced this afternoon at the charred remains were discovered

POMONA GRANGE FLAYS STOREMEN WHO BUY FROM OUTSIDE GROWERS

Pomona Grange of Clearfield county at a recent session passed a resolution which in effect says that if Clearfield county merchants can go out of the county to buy produce in competition with Clearfield county growers, farmers ought to be permitted to buy their supplies outside as well. Following is the resolution:

Local merchants who censure farmers and others for patronizing mail order houses, and insist that all should deal with the local merchants should bear in mind that this rule works both ways.

Why do these dealers buy their potatoes and other vegetables and meats from outside districts instead of handling the products of our local farmers. The latest infraction of the Golden Rule was the shipping of a carload of potatoes into Clearfield and Curwensville. After widely advertising them, said merchant sold them for a few cents below the local price, thus creating a cut throat condition, and sending the money out of the county.

Therefore be it Resolved that the farmers composing this Pomona Grange should only patronize merchants who deal with them.

SWEETIN CASE WILL BE PLACED BEFORE JURY THIS WEEK

Mount Vernon, Ill., Dec. 4. (INS.)— Selection of the jury which is to determine the guilt of Rev. Lawrence M. Hight, unfrocked minister of Ina, and Mrs. Elsie Sweetin, indicted for poisoning Mrs. Anna Hight and Wilford Sweetin, began yesterday. It was believed the jury would not be completed until the end of the week.

Mrs. Sweetin appeared in court, her hair neatly curled, and her bearing indicating the confidence of acquittal which she has so frequently expressed during her imprisonment. She searcely glanced at the mild looking pastor, whose burning love for her was alleged to be the motive in the poisoning.

"I hate him now," she told newspaper men. "And as for that love plot they talk about, I was a sick woman when they questioned me. I don't know anything about it now."

"All I want is a chance and I'll prove to the jury that I'm innocent."

Ladd To Be Ousted From Steering Committee Of The U. S. Senate

lowing the edict of their conference that insurgents must not be considered in making new committee assignments, Republican leaders have definitely decided to oust Senator Ladd, of North Dakota, from the Republican steering committee, it was learned today.

The new committee, with Ladd off is expected to be named shortly, probably tomorrow, by Senator Curtis, Republican of Kansas, Republican leader in the Senate.

Curtis and Watson, Republican, of Indiana, Vice Chairman of the Republican conference, also are to be relieved from membership. They made this request themselves.

Senator Wadsworth, Republican, of New York, is slated for the chairmanship.

Coalport Officials Are Given A Clean Bill Of Health By Grand Jury

The December Grand Jury which took up on Monday last consideration of the list of cases scheduled for trial at the criminal court which opens on Monday, December 15th, appears to have had its own ideas of the gravity of the alleged violations of the criminal statutes of the State as measured by the informations returned to court by the different Justices of the Peace of the county.

This Grand Jury was made up of the average sober, sensible citizens of the county, with one woman on the list, and they had their own opinions of what constituted a violation of the law and an honest prosecution, while on the other hand they used the average man's judgement in picking out the trivial, trumped-up prosecutions and didn't mince words in saying what they thought.

The result was that they ignored more bills placing the costs very properly upon the prosecutors, than any other Grand Jury in recent years, and in every case the evidence presented pretty near warranted such action.

They made short work of the series of indictments against Squire J. W.
Lain and Constable Aaron Peacock, of Coalport. These officers were charged on six or eight informations made before Squire Ruffner at Madara, with extortion, malfeasance in office and various other forms of money making shakedowns. Squire Lain and Constable Peacock have been active in the prosecution of liquor law violators for some time, showing no quarter to any offender, and as each of the prosecutions brought against them were instigated by some one who had felt the heavy hand of the law, or a friend of some such person, the Grand Jury decided the whole thing was "nit work" and an attempt to make zealous officers suffer for doing their duty and promptly ignored each bill as it was presented and placed the costs upon the prosecutors.

"Ma" Ferguson To Name Many Women To Places Of Great Importance

Fort Worth, Tex., Dec. 4. (INS.)— Christmas gifts of lucrative jobs, with many women appointees, is the plan
Mrs. Miriam "Ma" Ferguson, government-elect, announced today.

Most of the 50-odd appointments to be made will be announced Christmas eve, "Ma" said, and she made no secret of the fact that she has not forgotten her pre-election promises to grant adequate recognition to her sex on the administrative slate.

But "Ma" is surprised that out of one thousand applications for the 50 jobs there are so few women candidates.

It is considered almost a certainty that the next Secretary of State will be a woman.

DEER KILLINGS SO NUMEROUS HUNTER LOSES HIS GLORY

Deer killings are so frequent on the mountains these days that there is very little of the old time glory to the slaying of a wily buck. Just the same the fellow who gets one has a merited chesty feeling and likes to kiss the fellow who "missed his'n."
Well over a hundred bucks are now killed up at the various camps within a range of fifteen miles of Clearfield and the bark of the rifle still sends the death toll mounting higher. Every day sees men returning to normalcy after having killed their and fresh "shock troops" filling the ranks at the front.

One another year passes the method of handling the news of the camps may have to be changed. Deer killings are so numerous that there is little news about it. New plans are being considered. One is to divide the hunters into three classifications.
Namely: hunters, those who seek and have not found; bum shots, those who miss and killers, those whose aim is true and trigger finger steady.

Now, wouldn't that make it interesting? Under the second heading a couple of camps we know of are invited to send in their club roster.

Eph. Davis of Borgs township, an old time buck hunter and successful fisherman, added an unusually big buck to his list of trophies. He got his buckskin on Black Mohanran.

Lick Camp got two bucks on Tuesday. Joseph Shugert, of Shaw-ville got a fine eight pronged buck and Gordon Amos, also of Shawville, got a five prong buck.

The Huckleberry Springs Camp, located near Camp Gordon had two bucks yesterday afternoon. John F.
Smith of West Fourth Ave. got No. 5
Jack Henry's boys have three deer at their camp near their Mt. Zion home.

Poole Camp now has three bucks.
John Fontenoy of West Fifth Ave., got No. 3 at 9 o'clock Wednesday morning.

The Merrill Office crew got three bucks. The deer slayers are Glen Hubler, Preston Gulich and Mike Farrell.

Otis Carns and his crew have three fine bucks at their camp on the headwaters of Lick Run. They got two of them Wednesday afternoon.

The lucky hunters at the Fred Shaw Hunting Camp in Goshen township which got the limit some time before noon yesterday were Ralph Shaw, Lloyd Shaw, Pete Swartz,
George Harper, J. L. Troxell and F.
M. Troxell, the first two from Clearfield, the second two from Morrisville and the Troxells from Fallen Timber.

Fork Run Camp have two fine bucks hung up. Frank Dahl and H.
E. Owens were the lucky hunters.

The Morrison hunting party have three fine bucks, the kill of Clark
Butler, Harris Morrison and Paul Morrison.

Hobart Hallman helped to put the Orcutt garage on the map by slaying one in the mountains above Curwens-ville. He now stands on a par with the big boys with little still "buckles."

Harrisburg, Dec. 4. (INS.)—Late developments in the mysterious death of Amos P. Kitchen, prominent local business man, tends to support the murder theory, police say, but no clue as to the identity of the assail- ants has been found. Kitchen was seen leaving a street car about ten o'clock Monday night. His son said he was carrying $500 at the time. The next morning his body was found in a creek, his skull fractured.

A PECULIAR ACCIDENT Hagerstown, Md., Dec. 3. (INS.)—Explaining the merits of a new revolver to a pros- pective customer in his fat- ter's store, this morning Rich- ard Gross, 20, of Sharpsburg, was instantly killed when a rubber band, holding the trig- ger of an old revolver lying on one of the shelves in the store snapped, releasing the trigger and sending one of the bullets into his head.

At 3 p. m. on the 30th of each month Edward Pichard must leave his home to spend the night at the Meigs county (Ohio) jail. This is the unique sentence that was passed on him in March after he pled guilty of manslaughter had been accepted in connection with the fatal shooting of his brother William. He must make four more of these monthly trips to the jail.

Mellon Demands Sur-Tax Reduction

oughly studied and not tied up with the other provisions of the act.

"Aside from the grave constitutional question of the right of Congress to tax gifts at all, the gift tax is an excellent illustration of the futility of trying to prevent avoidance of excessive taxes and still not penalize legitimate transactions. Something is wrong with our tax policy if legislation such as this is necessary to make the collection of revenue effective."

"Turning to fiscal affairs, Mellon pointed to a surplus at the end of the 1924 fiscal year of $505,000,000, somewhat higher than the estimate. He said that income taxes, which aggregated $1,824,000,000, were only $8,000,000 less than the estimate, although a 25 per cent reduction had been made; Mellon explained that the Government is making a study of business cycles to determine the effect on tax revenues of various fluctuations. He added that a 10 per cent change in business activity means a much greater shift relatively in profits and income taxes.

Total Government expenditures in 1924 were reduced three billion dollars from the $6,482,000,000 maximum of 1920, according to the report. The public debt, which stood at $21,250,000,000 June 30, 1924, was reduced $1,098,894,000 during the year, a total cut of $5,343,000,000 from the peak August 31, 1919. The aggregate cut reduces interest approximately $225,000,000 annually.

"Debt reduction is the best method of bringing about tax reduction," Mellon said.

A continued policy of taxation to meet reductions will be continued, the cuts to be predicated on the amount the nation can pay without endangering the business structure. The present program calls for an annual reduction of $500,000,000, chargeable against ordinary receipts.

Recommendations for passage of the McAdams and Pepper banking bills to give relief to national banks handicapped by certain restrictions in competition with state banks were made by Mellon as a part of the program to improve the currency system.

Mellon asked for an appropriation of $2,879,000 to build up a reserve supply of paper currency. He said the action will bring about a saving of $1,500,000 annually. The secretary outlined the Treasury program of increasing the circulation of silver dollars, saying that their use would save the Government $328,000 annually.

The total foreign debt to the United States November 15 was $10,559,929,727, according to the report. Mellon described several settlements with small powers during the last year, adding that the total funded debt amounts to $4,249,434,920, the principal part of which is that of Great Britain.

Mellon's report showed that no proposals for settlement have been received from France, Belgium, Italy or Greece, the principal debtors whose obligations have not been funded. He made no recommendations as to the Congressional action on the debt question.

The report devoted a short space to prohibition enforcement, saying that fines and forfeitures had brought $6,052,719 to the Treasury in the last year. Property used in violation of the law valued at $10,843,000 was seized by the Government.

About 33,000,000 gallons of whiskey are in legal storage in the United States, Mellon said. Withdrawals in 1924 amounted to 1,813,000 gallons, compared to a maximum whisky consumption in 1917, when tax was paid on 104,000,000 gallons.

COOLIDGES TRAVEL TO CHICAGO, USING REGULAR PULLMANS

By GEORGE E. DURNO

I. N. S. Staff Correspondent
Chicago, Dec. 4.—The President of the United States, travelling in an ordinary Pullman on a regular train "even as you and I," arrived in Chicago this morning at 8:50.

An enthusiastic crowd, which undaunted by inclement weather, stormed about the Baltimore and Ohio station and thronged the route to the Drake hotel, gave Calvin Coolidge, his wife and members of his party, Chicago's welcome.

The President, with Mrs. Coolidge by his side, stepped from the Capitol limited, as unostentatiously as John Smith and his wife may, half of his trip which has made history and established a precedent for economy, ended.

Press photographers' flash lights boomed their salute, as the President stopped a moment, posing in a half-embarassed sort of way, then started through the station to the waiting motor.

A reception committee, again halted him, for an outburst of oratory to which "Silent Cal" responded with a nod of his head and the faint flicker of a smile. The ever-present secret service men hovered about the presidential party nervously as the delay at the station increased and seemed relieved when the President continued throughout the mob which was increasing momentarily.

The return trip to Washington will start at 9:30.

PRESBYTERIANS WILL PRESENT BILL

Philadelphia, Dec. 4th. (INS)—A petition will be forwarded to the next State Legislature by the Presbyterian Ministerial Association asking that the Pennsylvania laws be amended so as to permit the attendance of school children at classes in religious instruction during the weekdays.

The Association points out that at present the law does not permit school authorities to excuse children from their classes for one hour in order that they may attend schools of religion. It is this situation that the Association hopes to correct thru the legislation suggested.

FIVE KILLED IN RAIL WRECK IN CALIFORNIA

Oakland, Calif., Dec. 4. (INS)—At least five persons were killed, several others are dying and more than 40 others were injured today when a Twelfth street key route car, packed with commuters and San Francisco bound, was telescoped for half its length when a San Francisco trolley crashed into its rear, near the Oakland mole on the Key route's deep water trestle.

The collision is declared by officials of the Key System Traction Company to be the worst in East Bay history. Caught in the tangle of splintering wood and ripping steel, scores of passengers in the rear of the Key route car were crushed, several were killed outright, according to reports, and others so mangled that they died within a few minutes.

The cause of the collision has not been determined. The trestle to the Key mole is operated under what is called the safest block system in existence.

Every available hospital facility in Oakland and Berkeley was taxed to the limit by the stream of injured rushed in by hastily organized resources.

One man's life was saved by a fellow passenger who held his hands around the injured man's throat for an hour while awaiting medical assistance. The act prevented him from bleeding to death through two deep gashes in his throat.

Sanitary Quarters Essential for Hens

Precautions Necessary for Health and Production.

Only such fowls as are in good health should be placed in the laying house, and thereafter the surroundings should be kept in an absolutely sanitary condition. These precautions are necessary if birds are to go through the water in good health and production, asserts F. R. Deandette, poultry pathologist at the state college of agriculture, New Brunswick.

Birds usually become infested with intestinal parasites and occasionally contract infectious diseases while on the range. When they are brought together in the laying house the possibility of a spread of infection and parasites is greatly increased because of the closer contact between the fowls.

Birds infested with parasites on the range scatter the eggs of such parasites over a wide area, which reduces the chance of infestation; but in the laying quarters the possibility of spread is greatly increased. In order to avoid this a regular and thorough cleaning of the quarters, such as the removal and disposal of all litter, is necessary. Careless distribution of litter containing parasite eggs only serves to perpetuate infestations. If the houses are not cleaned the worm eggs which have been voided by the fowls will develop and be taken up again and produce a heavier infestation than would occur on the range.

In order to prevent this the drinking vessels should be cleaned daily and the area around such vessels should be kept dry. The dropping boards should be cleaned daily during warm weather, to prevent flies from spreading the tape worm eggs. During colder seasons daily cleaning is not so

Few "English Inns"

While this country has many advertised "charming English inns," English visitors say that they have disappeared from England.

Farm premises are not attractive by accident. What are you doing this fall toward shrubbery, flowers, fruit and nut trees?

As a mere house is not a home, go a tract of land is not necessarily a farm. "There's more in the man than there is in the land."

Grading is not a process for reducing the quality of farm produce to be sold, but a process for increasing the value of that which will be sold.

The size of a farmer's loss account can be measured by the amount of machinery he leaves scattered about the premises to be rotted and rusted.

ODDS AND ENDS AND THINGS

By J. D. C.

A correspondent of the New York World has brought to the sturdy and undefeated champion of the generally defeated Democratic party a bushel of statistics that must be rather indigestible material for our esteemed contemporary's editorial stomach at the moment. By a statistical showing of the popular vote from 1876 down to date the correspondent claims to prove that the Democratic party is already fifty years along in a gradual decline which means total extinction at no very distant day. The decline is from 47.4 per cent of the popular electoral vote for Tilden to 25.5 per cent for Davis in the election just past. There were little spurts of recovery with Cleveland and Bryan and Wilson. Not so much recovery as retargation, but through the forty-eight years the outstanding fact is the steady, resistless party disintegration and falling away of popular support. The World publishes the figures and seems to accept their logic, but what it will do about it is not as yet opened to a waiting public. Here is the letter referred to:

"The Democratic party has been losing ground for half a century. Indisputable evidence of this is found in the Presidential election returns from 1860 to 1924 inclusive.

In order to obtain the real opinion of our citizenship as to the fitness of the Democratic party to have control of our National Government we must eliminate from consideration all votes of all parties in the so-called Solid South, as the South is predominately Democratic from local necessity and not from any particular preference for a national Democratic Administration. Omitting all votes in the Solid South and taking all votes cast in the balance of the United States, we find that in the 17 presidential elections, 1860 to 1924 inclusive, the Republicans had a majority of all the votes cast in all but three of the elections; and in two of these three they had a plurality; and only in 1912, due to the Roosevelt split, did they fail of a plurality. During the same period the Democrats never once had a majority, and only once, in 1912, had a plurality.

What is the matter with the Democratic party?

Not only have the Democrats never succeeded in obtaining a majority, if the Southern vote is omitted, but their percentage of the total vote cast has been diminishing—almost uniformly diminishing—for half a century. They reached their highest percentage in 1876 with Tilden, when they received 47.4 per cent. In 1924, from the latest unofficial reports, they received 25.5 per cent, and in the intervening years, with the exceptions of 1904 and 1916, the drop has been almost uniform, as is evidenced by the following figures:

1876	47.4 per cent	Tilden
1880	44.6 per cent	Hancock
1884	45.7 per cent	Cleveland
1888	45.4 per cent	Cleveland
1892	43.5 per cent	Cleveland
1896	43.8 per cent	Bryan
1900	42.9 per cent	Bryan
1904	34.2 per cent	Parker
1908	40.0 per cent	Bryan
1912	38.0 per cent	Wilson
1916	46.6 per cent	Wilson
1920	30.8 per cent	Cox
1924	25.5 per cent	Davis

In 1904 the weakness of Parker and his platform caused the Democratic percentage to drop considerably below the normal rate of reduction, but in 1908 the party regained its position on its descending scale—that is, its percentage in 1908 was just as much below its percentage in 1900 as the unusually low percentage had been recorded in 1904. In 1908 the party merely resumed its normal downward trend.

The same thing occurred after the 1916 increase in percentage. In this year Wilson obtained an increase of percentage to 46.6, possibly due to the campaign slogan, "He kept us out of war," but in 1920 the percentage dropped again to a figure well below the 1912 percentage. The party again resumed its normal downward trend. Manifestly a persistent downward trend for half a century cannot be blamed on any individual candidate or upon any particular campaign. There must be something fundamentally wrong somewhere.

What is the matter with the Democratic party?

FARM NOTES

The farmer who sells misrepresentative produce gives away his reputation.

A scrub cow producing 4,000 pounds of milk in a year, still owes its owner 4,000 pounds more.

The time is not far off when the farmer must be a first-class business man, if he is to stay in business.

Refilling a silo generally means that from two to five more tons can be put in after the first filling has settled.

A little care in selecting the seed corn this year may save much disappointment over the crop next year.

Save the surface and you save all—the surface. The insides of some implements need attention, and the tractor comes under that heading.

The man who treats his horses well in the fall will treat them well the other three seasons of the year, and that's the only way to do it.

Were you unlucky enough to have some hay spoiled by the rains this summer? If so, don't forget to spread it around or draw it off the field, for it will smother the next crop in short order if left in piles.

Sheep Flock Should Be Given Good Protection

Take good care of the sheep and lambs during the fall months and early winter, say the sheep men at the college of agriculture at Illinois, who point out that while sheep can obtain much nourishment until quite late in the season from the stubble and corn fields, they should be provided with protection from the cold rains.

This protection may be only a rough shelter in a fence corner, but some sort of protection should be provided. This will not only prevent injury to the fleeces, but will lessen the danger of colds or pneumonia developing in the flock.

It is also pointed out that it is best to keep the fleeces as free from burrs, straw, and chaff as possible, since cleaning wool is expensive. If feed racks are properly constructed the chaff problem can be solved, and the proper care of the pasture will eliminate burrs.

Dull Knives in Silage Cutter Are Not Favored

Experiments made at a number of agricultural colleges show that dull knives in a silage cutter mean not only a tremendous increase in the power required, but also decrease the fineness and uniformity of the cut material and add to the cost of doing the work. This conclusion is also borne out by the experiences of practical silo fillers in the field. One fruitful source of dull knives is the sand and grit which adheres to bundle corn that has been thrown on the ground, especially if a heavy rain strikes. This is one benefit of an elevator to a corn blower, by which the bundles are floated directly onto the wagons instead of being thrown on the ground.

Lime Applied to Supply Calcium for Plant Food

One purpose in applying lime to land for alfalfa or clover is to supply calcium to be used as food, and in a form which may be readily used. In applying lime, enough should be applied to supply the alfalfa with as much calcium as may be needed. As alfalfa needs about as much calcium as there is in about 75 pounds of hydrated lime for each ton of hay it grows, you can calculate about how much lime should be added to meet the alfalfa requirements for the period you expect the alfalfa to grow. If you expect the alfalfa to stand for five years and it makes four to five tons of hay each year, you will need to apply considerable hydrated lime per acre. Unless you can secure hydrated lime very cheaply you will find it better to use common ground limestone and apply from four to five tons per acre if the subsoil is sour as well as the surface soil.

APPEAL TO WOMEN

Edward S. Jordan, head of a big motor car company, applies his advertising psychology especially to the woman in the case.

The automobile business, he insists, is romantic. "You may think of it," he tells his branch dealers, "as a business which deals with clutches, axles, transmissions and brakes. But if it is not a romantic business, why do makers sell so many cars in June?"

He finds romance in banking, too. Or at least, he finds the eternal feminine interest there. "I think if I were doing bank advertising," he says, "I would mention the capital and surplus only about once a year. I would rather dwell on how Sally Jones acquired her first bank account and how she felt about it."

He advises advertisers of all kinds to remember that "every normal man doing business with your company is dominated by some woman."

RELIGION OF TODAY

"One thing is certain," says the Rev. Percy G. Kammerer of Pittsburgh. "He who attempts to meet the needs of men today must be able to win them to a God not of the dead, but of the living."

The old teaching, he remarks, divided man into three parts—spirit, mind and body—and then concerned itself mainly with the spirit and often arrayed one of these three elements against the others, so that the result was conflict instead of adjustment. Religion, he holds, should bring harmony of all human activities.

"The religion of today," continues this minister, "must not set the spirit of man to war against his mind. It must teach men that faith is not belief in spite of evidence, nor blind credulity. It must not set the spirit of man to war against his emotions. It is the whole man of impulse, thought and desire which it is the possibility of religion to capture for God."

All of which is probably true, and was known to many a great teacher of old as well as to those of this very enlightened age. But to make all men agree to it, and then translate the doctrine into actual living is a large undertaking.

INFLATION

Business men and government officials now are beginning to worry about inflation. This is a good sign, in so far as it shows that the depression is past. It is good, too, to start thinking of unwholesome inflation before it really comes. The business world is learning to recognize the symptoms early, and to call the doctor before a dangerous temperature develops.

There are two remedies, generally recognized, against over-expansion or undue inflation. One is a financial "specific" that can be applied easily whenever the doctors consider it wise, in doses suited to the needs of the patient. It is the raising of the re-discount rate through the Federal Reserve system, thus making it harder to get money for speculating and holding stocks. The other remedy is in the hands of the public, and consists merely in refusal to buy when prices rise too far.

The Father of the Christmas Seal

Little Patients Taking the Sun-Cure for Tuberculosis at an American Sanatorium.

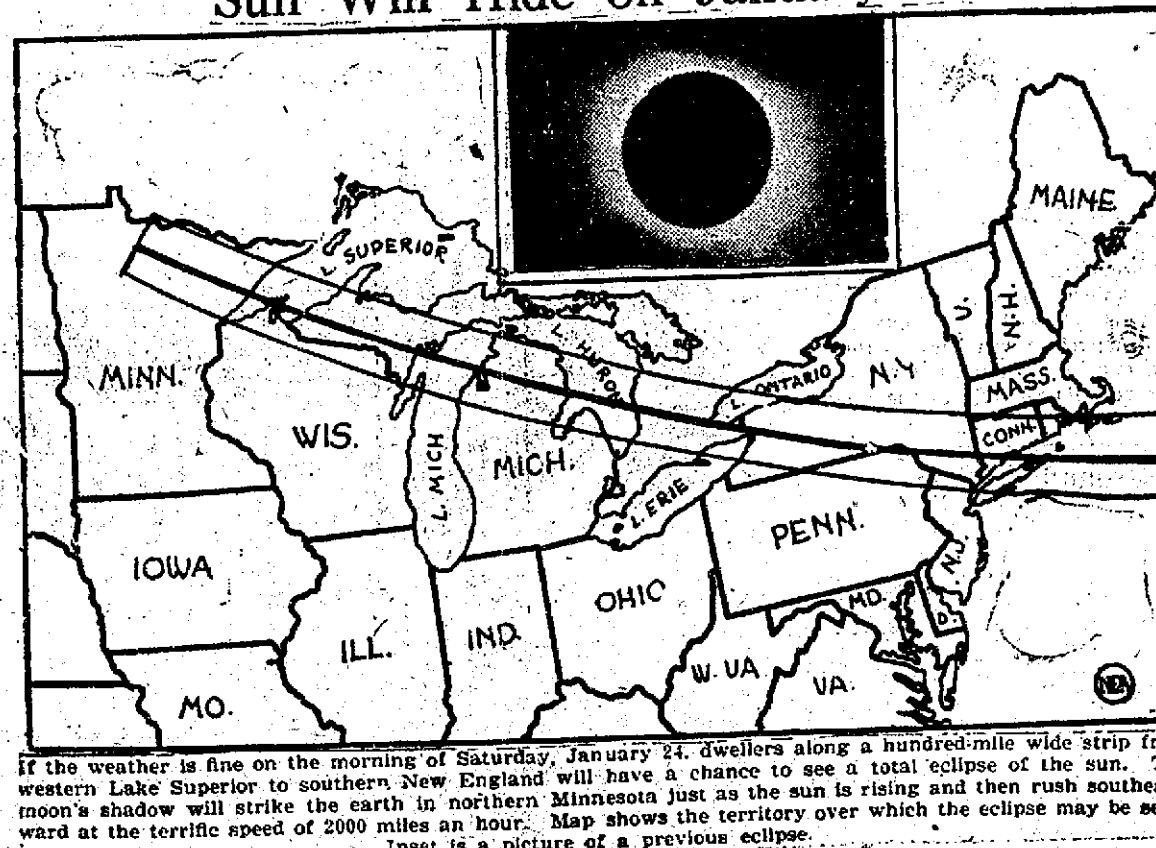

Einar Holboell, inventor of the Christmas Seal.

"I saw at once, shack of eight beds on the banks of the Brandywine, securing $3,000. She in turn, had read a magazine article by the great philanthropist, Jacob A. Riis, describing the Danish tuberculosis stamp he had received on the back of a letter from the city of his birth—Copenhagen."

Twenty years ago a young mail clerk in a small postoffice in Denmark was working far into the night on Christmas Eve distributing holiday greeting cards and letters. He saw that as a rule they would go to comfortable homes, housing happy, vigorous families. But he knew, too, that where kind Christmas wishes and good Christmas deeds were most needed, there likely would not come even a brief word of greeting. An inspiration seized him. Why not spend this money to alleviate the condition of the unfortunate? Perhaps by a tax on greeting cards this could be accomplished. His fertile imagination soon pictured a device to encourage the practice and put a voluntary tax on it too—and thus in Denmark was born the idea of the Christmas Seal, in 1903. Now let us permit this erstwhile postal clerk, the father of the seal, Einar Holboell, to tell the story of the evolution of his dream into reality. "The people of Denmark regard Christmas as the greatest holiday of the year," stated Mr. Holboell, who is now postmaster at Charlottenlund, on a recent visit to New York. "Everybody observes it, and all hearts and hands are open at this season. Letters, would spend more money, but the poor could have the pleasure of helping, too. A committee of men of distinction was formed, and through their influence, I obtained the permission of the Ministry to sell the stamps at postoffices for the benefit of a fund to erect a hospital for tuberculous children. So a year after the idea came to me, the first tuberculosis Christmas stamps were sold in 1904. "The return far exceeded our expectations, totalling 70,000 Danish crowns, or about $10,000. Year by year the income has increased. Last year it was 217,000 crowns and during the twenty years they have been sold, a total sum of 2,700,000 crowns has been realized. "Our committee has erected a hospital accommodating 165 tuberculous children, and since it was opened, a total of 3,000 little girls and boys have gone to the institution at Kolding, Ejord and been healed. We now have three homes for weak and undernourished children, and besides have contributed generously to societies which aim to help sick and poor children in various ways." The first sale in the United States was in 1907, when Miss Emily P. Bissell, of Wilmington, Delaware, adopted the idea to raise funds to maintain a tuberculosis

POT BOILERS

By FLORENCE DAVIES
What are Pot Boilers?
Or, perhaps, one might say, Why is a pot boiler?

A pot boiler, a writer or an artist will tell you, is another way of saying "This doesn't count. This isn't my best. This is just something that I'm doing to mark time, to keep busy, but it isn't the real me. In other words, it isn't my best."

It's a term that artists and writers and musicians like to use when they refer to a piece of work that they do for the sake of bringing in enough cash to make it possible for them to live until they can produce some great work of genius.

"Just hack work," says the writer, with a shrug of the shoulders, when he refers to something he does for so much an inch, or so much a week.

"Just hack work," says the artist when he refers to the lettering, or the layouts, or the advertising copy he turns out to bring in a weekly stipend while the great masterpiece waits to be painted. Yes, and as long as he says "Just hack work," hack work it will be.

But why should there be such a thing as hack work? Why should it exist? There are men and women who have brought lettering to a fine art, an art which illumined the great manuscripts of the middle ages.

There are members of the Royal Academy in London who have devoted their lives to the service of the demands of an advertisement not beneath their dignity, and others who now paint pictures for thousands who began by doing the so-called "pot-boilers" in the art room of a newspaper as if each drawing were destined for the Royal Academy.

As for the "pot-boiler" of the literary "hack", why should any writer word which is worthy of the dignity of type ever be anything but the best that the writer can produce.

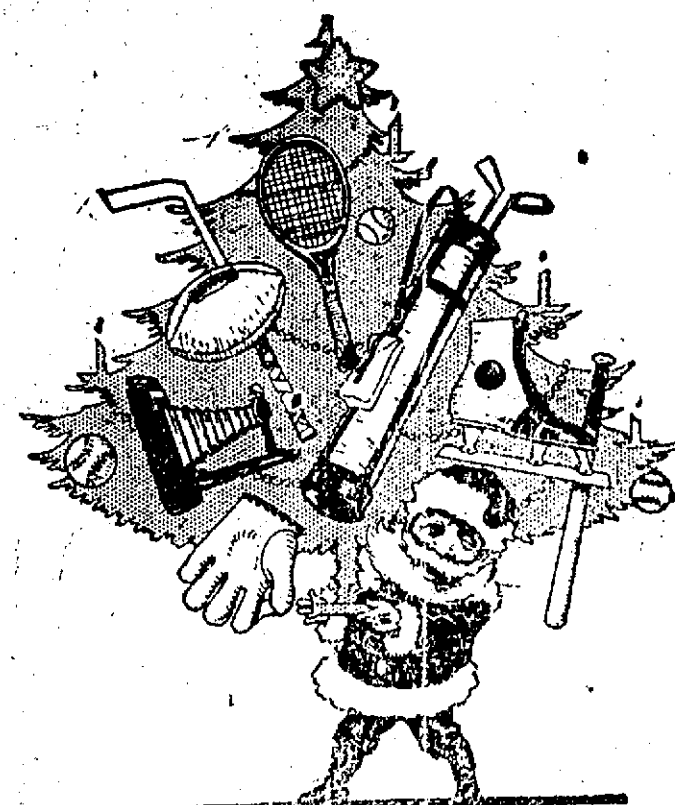

Isn't it because of the very fact that a worker calls what he does a pot boiler and thinks of it as such, instead of as a masterpiece in miniature that he stays in the so-called "hack" class?

But the trouble with a good many people is that they go through life making hack work of the tasks that could be turned into masterpieces.

The work of Dean Cornwall, famous American illustrator, is so important that it has been called a new factor in art. Yet hundreds of young artists have looked upon illustrating as a compromise, not as an end in itself. They have grudgingly turned their hand to "a little illustrating" while they were waiting to paint the great American picture.

"It is a great game," says Dean Cornwall in discussing his art. "It's a great game if you're willing to make it a career in itself and not look down on it as a mere means of making money. I always tell my pupils that if they do not consider illustration worthy of their highest effort, of every ounce of energy and inspiration they have, then they had better do something else."

Now the only thing the matter with that advice is that Mr. Cornwall limited it to his pupils. What a service he would do us all if he would just tell the rest of us that same thing. We would soon find that every road led to success if we considered our tasks, no matter how small, as worthy of being done as well as possible for their own sakes.

CONVENIENT STORAGE PLACES FOR FOOD

Cold Box for Food, Opening into Kitchen—Ventilated at Bottom.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Successful care of food in the home depends very largely on whether there is a good storeroom, suitable containers and an ice box or some other reliable means of keeping foods cool, says a new Farmers' Bulletin, 1374, "Care of Food in the Home," prepared by the bureau of home economics.

The pantry, cellar or other room where food is kept should be clean, cool, airy, dry, screened against flies and other vermin, and free from musty or other disagreeable odors. Suggestions about the convenient arrangement of pantries and other storerooms with relation to the kitchen and an illustration of a good type of home-made window box are given in a bulletin issued by the United States Department of Agriculture.

If the cellar must be used as the chief storage place for food, a dumb-waiter on which supplies can be lowered and raised soon pays for itself in time and strength saved. The liberal use of whitewash and unshined lime in the cellar helps to keep down micro-organisms and undesirable odors. Since the bottom of the cellar is the coolest part, foods often keep best if set on the floor, provided it is clean and dry. If the floor is damp and earthy, a layer of clean bricks may be arranged under the food. If there is a furnace in the main part of the cellar, it is generally too warm and dry for the winter storage of fruits and vegetables, but a storeroom can often be partitioned off and so ventilated that the temperature is kept constantly cool. A cool room in a dry cellar is also a good place to store canned foods.

In a cool, dry climate food may be successfully kept in an airshaft extending from the cellar or the lower floor of the house to the roof and equipped with a door opening into the kitchen or pantry and wire or perforated shelves of convenient height. Both ends of this shaft should be screened.

GROUPING SUPPLIES IS ALWAYS HELPFUL

Many Steps Saved by Placing in Convenient Spot.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Many of the well-timed cupboard and shelf space for storing utensils and food supplies is helpful in every kitchen. Save steps by grouping similar things and placing them near the part of the room where they will be used. For instance, suggests the United States Department of Agriculture, Utensils Grouped Where Used.

Keep mixing bowls and spoons and such dry materials as sugar and flour near each other if possible. Necessaries often economize space more than vice ones and are easier to handle and to keep in order. Low shelves are on the whole preferred to those reaching to the ceiling, and are not so likely to become "catch-alls."

Search May Come Out

A frequent question put to home economists working in the United States Department of Agriculture is how to take out search. Search upon cotton and linen sometimes can be removed, if the fibers are not actually burned. Wool and silk are disintegrated at a lower temperature than cotton and linen and cannot be restored to their original condition after being searched.

For removing slight search stains from cotton and linen, use one of the following methods:

Wash with soap and water. This is sufficient to remove very slight stains. Try water and sunlight. Wet the spot with water (or soap and water) and expose to the sun for a day, or longer, if necessary. As it dries out the stain. The search disappears much more slowly if the material is not washed so thoroughly. Very slight search on the surface of materials which are not especially delicate sometimes can be rubbed away with a bread crumb.

Bathroom Innovations

The first built-in china bathroom accessory was a soap holder which originally appeared on the market in 1924.

LIVE STOCK

FARM ANIMALS MUST HAVE SALT SUPPLY

One of the most commonly used mineral elements with live stock and one with which we are all familiar is that of salt or sodium chloride, this material supplying the elements, sodium and chlorine, which seem to be necessary for live stock. It has been a practice with successful stock men for centuries to supply common salt to all kinds of live stock, and while there is a considerable difference in opinion as to the necessity of this, it is considered a good practice and from the experiments that have been conducted, is doubtless a necessary one.

Salt should not be given to animals in too large amounts, as it would induce the drinking of great quantities of water, which would lessen digestion, bring about abnormal secretion of digestive fluids and other undesirable results. There is no question but that salt improves the palatability of certain feeds, and probably increases the appetite in some cases.

Exhaustive experiments were made by Babcock and Carleton of the Wisconsin experiment station, which proved conclusively that it is absolutely necessary to supply salt, especially to dairy cows, in every case, after withholding salt for a short time. These animals evidenced an abnormal appetite for it. Every one of them reached a point where vitality was extremely low and a general breakdown occurred. This occurred in most cases after several months. In every case, when either a potassium or sodium salt containing a chlorine was furnished, a complete recovery took place. This experiment brought out the fact that it was not the sodium, but that it was the chlorine that was necessary.

The amount of salt required by animals will vary considerably, according to the locality from which the feed is secured for them. It will also vary considerably, according to the production of the various individuals of the herd. The safest and most satisfactory manner in which to supply salt to live stock is to allow them access to it at all times, and when handled in this way, no bad results should follow.

It is well to keep in mind, however, that swine and poultry are very susceptible to salt poisoning, and for this reason only small amounts should be fed to them. In no case should swine or poultry be allowed free access to salt, or solutions of brine, as this is a dangerous practice. Many cases of salt poisoning in poultry and swine are reported each year and most of them are fatal.

Avoid Many Kinds of Pig Diseases by Sanitation

Under the present state of domestication the hog is subjected to more conditions that are detrimental to his health and predispose him to disease than any other of our domestic animals. His very nature also makes him liable to many of the diseases that are contracted by him.

The hog for centuries has been considered more or less in the light of a scavenger, eating feeds or refuse of any and all kinds, and much of it in a spoiled or decayed condition. In the earlier times most people were of the opinion that such practices were safe with the hog, but in later years we have discovered they are really the cause of large losses that were often attributed to other causes. Such practices are not as common as formerly, but are still too common for the best interests of the industry.

Sanitation, proper feeding and housing and providing for plenty of exercise are known means of avoiding many kinds of sickness, and are cheap in comparison with the loss they save and must be practiced if the industry is to be profitable in the long run.

A hog or stone jar is satisfactory for brining. Kegs must be well washed with hot water, and soaked overnight with fresh water, to be sure they are watertight. Round board covers, coated with hot paraffin, are used to keep the vegetable submerged in the brine. Clean bricks are used as weights. Another large round wood cover over the top of each keg is necessary to keep out dirt and dust.

At frequent intervals it is necessary to remove, with a large wooden spoon, or other suitable appliance, the scum which forms on the surface. This contains wild yeast, molds and various organisms. Covers and weights should be washed and the strength of the brine tested whenever the scum is being cared for.

For use, peppers prepared in this way are first soaked in cold water to freshen. They are then stuffed with chopped cabbage or some form of relish and the caps replaced and fastened with a few stitches, or wooden toothpicks. They should then be packed loosely in jars, covered with spiced vinegar and processed.

Buttermilk Lemonade

A refreshing and nutritious drink may be made by the addition of lemon juice and sugar to buttermilk, following the same procedure as in making ordinary lemonade, says the United States Department of Agriculture. It will usually be found necessary to use more sugar and more lemon juice than in making lemonade with water. Buttermilk lemonade should be served very cold.

Did Farnace Murderer Wear It?

This fifty-old gray coat may prove the making of the murderer of Mrs. Addie Sheatsley, whose body was found in the furnace of her home in Lexley, a suburb of Columbus, O. Its cuffs are stained and on it appear several stains believed to be from human blood. Two of the investigators are seen here examining it after it was found in the Sheatsley home.

ICE PROFITABLE WINTER HARVEST

Cutting Ice Cakes into Long Strips.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Ice is a very desirable luxury on any farm, and on a large number of them, particularly dairy farms, it is a necessity.

Thousands of farms have an available water supply from which it is practical to put up a supply of ice when the right sort of building has been provided. It should go without saying that the water supply must be pure. In addition, to have a good product the pond or other source must be free of vegetable matter. All the vegetation which accumulates in ponds, or slow moving streams, should be raked out late in the fall.

Keep Clear of Snow.

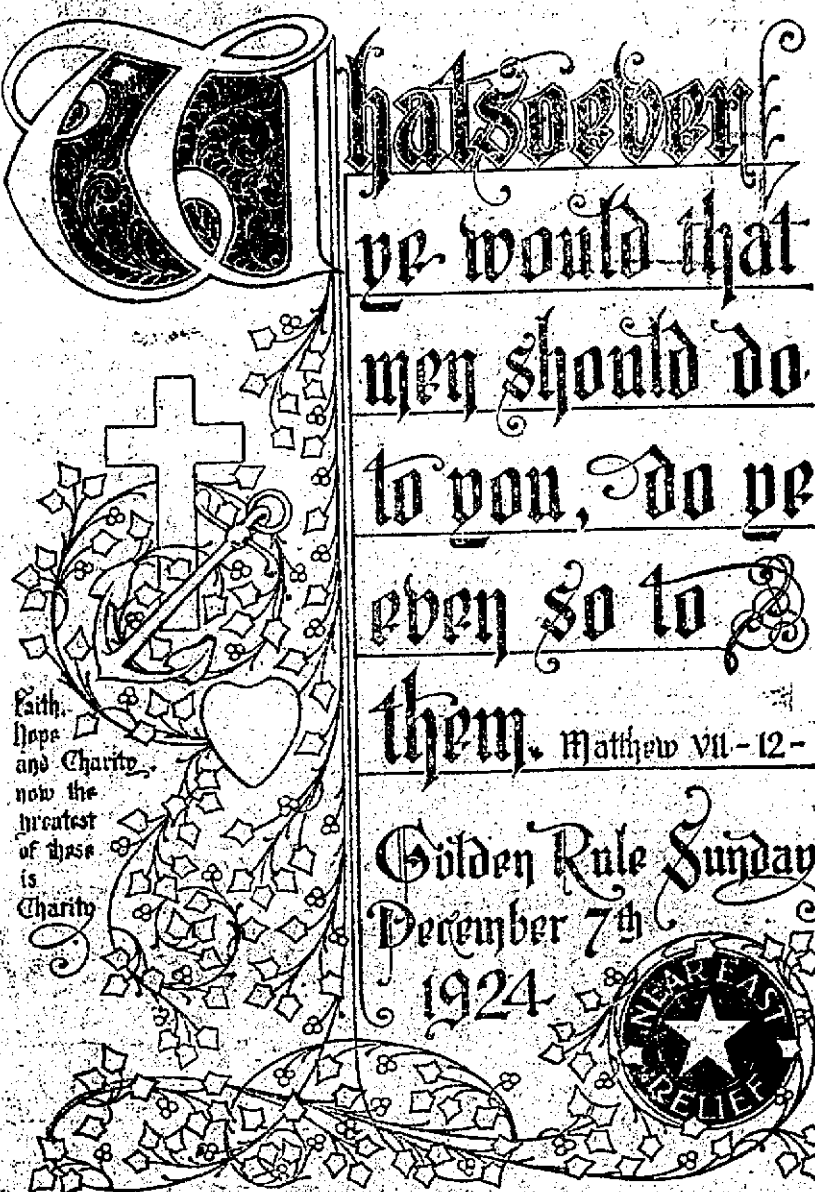

When a layer of ice of sufficient thickness is formed the surface should be kept clear of snow as this blanket retards freezing. When the ice has attained sufficient thickness the surface should be marked off into cakes of the desired size before cutting begins. The first strip of ice may be forced under the surface of the ice field and in that way a channel is opened to a landing place. Large strips may be floated down this channel and then sawed into smaller pieces before they are moved up into the ice house.

Not many tools are required for this purpose, two pairs of tongs, two ice hooks, one pointed bar, and one straight board for marking.

The size of the house and the quantity of ice required depend, of course, upon the size of the herd and whether whole milk cream is to be marketed. When cream only is to be cooled, a half ton of ice should be provided for each cow in the herd. For cooling milk, allow one and one-half tons for each cow. These quantities usually will leave a little excess ice for household use. Forty-five cubic feet of space is needed for storing each ton of ice.

The best ice house is built in the form of a cube, and a desirable location is in a shady place near the dairy house and where there is good natural drainage. If built on clay soil, artificial drainage should be provided to carry away the water from the melting ice. Plenty of insulation is needed in the form of sawdust or mill shavings. Commercial insulation is more efficient and desirable than either of these other materials, but it is more expensive. Wooden houses insulated with sawdust or wood shavings should be ventilated. Houses with commercial insulation and cement finish need no ventilation.

AFTERNOON STOCK REVIEW

I. N. S. Financial Editor
New York, Dec. 4.—A broad upward swing in railroad stocks which embrace practically all of the listed rails from Atlanta, Birmingham and Atlantic from 3 1/2 to Atlantic Coast line at 14 1/2, featured the stock market today. Prices in many of the popular rails jumped as sensationally as in any of the active post-election sessions of the market while specialty stocks like United States Realty, United States Distributing and Mail-inson silk exceeded the best previous records of the year.

The stock market was the center of interest in the financial district, though the strength of the Foreign Exchange market, where four of the European exchange went into new high levels for the year, was the subject of much favorable comment. Demand sterling, with an advance of 2 cents to the pound established a new high for 1924 at 468 3/4.

Extensive buying of the speculative railroad stocks, as well as those which have recently been placed on a dividend basis, was stimulated by the placing of Frisco Common on a five percent dividend basis and the extremely favorable forecasts of reports of current earnings of the prominent transportation lines. Seaboard air line, Missouri Pacific Common and preferred, Rock Island, Katy and other popular rails enjoyed an active market at the best prices of the year. Atlantic, Birmingham and Atlantic, the most active of the low priced stocks sold up from 2 1/2 to a new high at five.

Specular jumps in prices of specialty stocks helped to maintain speculative interest in stocks. That are sponsored by the bullish pools, United States Realty was rushed about to 14 1/2 for a gain of 7 points, completing a rise of over 40 points in a week. Allied chemical rose from 20 to 24 1/2 and United States Distributing above 41 showed a gain of nearly 7 points above yesterday's low.

Pan American and Pure Oil led a belated rally in the oil stocks but it was difficult to work up an enthusiasm here in view of the continued increase in crude oil production and the government gasoline report showing that gasoline is being refined much faster than it can be consumed.

Wheat was erratic throughout the session. It was uncertain at the opening and looked weak in early trading but firmed up later only to turn heavy again. There was much discussion in the pit concerning an effort to have the emergency car lot delivery rule made operative but there was little news to effect the market.

Corn acted about like wheat except that it started strong with a rush of buying. It sagged, however, as the day progressed and realizing sales flooded the pit.

Oats moved with other grains thru a narrow range on small trade. Provisions closed higher.

GRAIN CLOSING

Chicago, Dec. 4. (INS).—Grains closed off toward the finish today and closed generally lower. Wheat finished 1 1/2 off; corn closed 3/4 up to 1/2 off; and oats finished unchanged to 1/2 lower.

U. S. LONG TERM BOND ISSUE OVERSCRIBED

Washington, Dec. 4. (INS).—Over-subscription of the $200,000,000 new government long term bond issue, offered a few days ago, announced by the Treasury Department today.

Subscriptions already exceed $500,000,000. The Treasury will close subscriptions for which cash and certificates maturing Dec. 15, 1924, are tendered in payment at the close of business today.

The exchange subscriptions for which treasury 4 3/4 per cent notes maturing March 15, 1925, Treasury 4 per cent certificates, maturing March 15, 1925, and Third Liberty Loan 4 1/2 percent bonds, tendered in payment, will remain open until further notice, according to the announcement. Since allotments on these exchanges will be made in full, holders of these securities will have the opportunity to effect.

Mrs. C. E. LaBarr, who has been ill with the grippe is very much improved.

It Happens Every Day

When you take the paper and settle down in your favorite chair for a quiet evening's reading, and reach into your pocket for your glasses, but they're not in that pocket or in the left-hand one or in any of your pockets at all—

And you jump to your feet and look under the papers and magazines on the table and ask your wife where she put your glasses and she says she "supposes she had had them on last—where did you put them, yourself?"

And so you decide at last that you've lost them and your evening is completely ruined—because you can't read and all you do is sit around and think about the delay and expense of buying a new pair of glasses—

Until suddenly you get a cheering idea and go to the phone and give the Progress a Lost ad about your missing glasses—

And the next day—a few hours after the paper is out—someone returns the glasses to your office—and your eyesight and disposition are completely restored—

Oh, Man, That's What You Call Service!

SPORTS

Clearfield Athletes In
All Sports Make Good
In Many New Fields

Clearfield's aspirants for greater football honor are sure getting there these days, and by the look of things some of the local talent is bound to get into the real limelight ere long.

No less than four Clearfield grid-ders are making their names a byword in Colorado College on the slopes of the Rockies. Leo Roessner, Dave Howes, Blair Mann, and Frank Withrow are the boys.

Leo Roessner's playing drew him this extract from the Colorado Springs Gazette: "Roessner, with the 1924 Freshmen, is almost certain to land a regular position. He is one of the greatest guards in local football history and should prove this season next fall."

Howes and Withrow are candidates for the backfield and here's what they say about their prospects: "Howes and Withrow will probably fight it out for the backfield. Both will be eligible for varsity next season and will be set to go. Howes is a powerful line smasher and a great defensive back. Withrow is rasher but packs a like punch." Blair Mann is the last of the "gang" but he is no where near the final when the team is summed up. Blair played quite regular at tackle but was lately shifted to a guard position. All of these fellows have many times proven their brass on the local lot and their local friends rejoice over their making good.

Another local boy who has been doing his stuff is "Eddie" Butler. "Ed" has been holding down an end on "Stinky" Haines' Shenandoah team in style for this season. Saturday we met Frankford Yellow Jackets in a big game and "Ed" should be a umbling block for the "stingers". "Dick" McClure, a Weaver Street boy, has his tail feathers up also. "Dick", a student at Notre Dame, has won the welterweight boxing title "agers and toes" and easily won it himself.

INTER-CHURCH BOWLING
LEAGUE AT Y. M. C. A.

The Baptist league made a real team in their first game with the East End M. E. team and won the first game of the series with a score of 17 wins. With a little practice the team in the "col" should be able to pull out of the first and end the second series with a higher standing.

With seven more contests of the series to be rolled, the Presbyterians have a slight lead over the Trinity Methodist bowlers. This night end in a tie should the Presbyterians lose one game in their match with the Lutheran quintet. The standings:

Presbyterians	13	2	866
Trinity Methodist	9	3	750
East End Methodist	7	5	583
Lutheran	4	5	444
West Side Methodist	5	7	417
St. Francis	3	9	250
Baptist	1	11	083

Scores of Baptist Lutheran Contest Schedule for remainder of first series:

Monday, Dec. 8.—Baptist vs. West Side Methodist.
Tuesday, Dec. 9.—East End Methodist vs. Trinity M. E.

Thursday, Dec. 11.—St. John's Lutheran vs. Presbyterian.

Friday, Dec. 12.—Baptist vs. St. Francis.

Monday, Dec. 15.—St. Francis vs. Lutheran.

Tuesday, Dec. 16.—West Side M. E. vs. Trinity Meth.

Thursday, Dec. 18.—East End M. E. vs. St. John Lutheran.

Origin of the Veil

No modern bride is "obliged" to wear a veil. The significance of the custom has quite died out. Originally it was worn because no man was supposed to see his wife until after his marriage with her, and the veil was the girl's protection until they were actually wedded.

Philadelphia, Dec. 4. (INS.)—Her adherence to a faith cure cult stronger than her husband's plea to seek medical aid is why Mrs. Sarah K. Dominick, 26, a bride of ten days, lies dead at her apartment here, according to the local health bureau. The young wife was stricken with diphtheria a day after her marriage. Mrs. Dominick remained true to her teachings and refused to call a physician.

Philadelphia, Dec. 4. (INS.)—Judge William H. Shoemaker, 65, president of common pleas court No. 1, died late yesterday at his home here of heart disease from which he had been suffering since last August. Judge Shoemaker was appointed in 1914 by Gov. Brumbaugh to take the place of the late Judge John L. Kinsey.

Pittsburgh, Dec. 4.—Seeing his brother, Harold Smith, backed up against the cash register of their grocery store at the muzzle of a bandit's pistol late yesterday afternoon, Gustave A. Smith, 58, ran toward the two flourishing a huge meat knife. The bandit fired and ran. Smith pursued him to the door, threw the knife after him, collapsed and died. The bandit car, stolen, was found abandoned an hour later.

Fredericktown, Penn. Dec. 4.—A Pennsylvania passenger train which arrived here late last night was set on fire in an unusual manner when the engine struck a tank truck at a grade crossing near here. The truck was demolished and the gasoline caught fire, setting the coaches alight. Passengers fled in panic and the flames were extinguished with difficulty.

Ellsworth, Pa., Dec. 4 (INS.)—Thomas Boyle, 35, foreman at the Ellsworth mine, was killed and 3 others were badly hurt last night when the motor car of the main train hauling 160 workmen to the surface, became uncoupled at the head of the slope. The entire train passed over his body. He leaves a wife and two children.

NEW AMBASSADOR TO JAPAN HAS HARD
POSITION TO FILL

By LUTHER A. HUSTON
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

Tokio, Dec. 3.—All that Edgar A. Bancroft, the new American ambassador to Tokyo, needs to do to become the most popular envoy the United States or any other country has ever sent to Japan is:

1. Induce Congress to repeal the Japanese exclusion laws and pass a new law permitting Japanese to become American citizens.

2. Persuade the United States to abandon its plan to hold naval maneuvers at Hawaii, and

3. Convince the American government that it should step aside and allow Japan a free hand to develop the resources of the Asiatic continent.

Until he has shown a disposition at least to undertake these things Mr. Bancroft, according to comment in leading newspapers upon his arrival in Japan, cannot be welcomed to the sunrise kingdom with any degree of warmth. He must demonstrate his intention to work along these lines, several papers declared, before he can be accepted as a friend of Japan.

The Osaka Mainichi, an important member of what is probably the strongest and most influential group of newspapers in Japan, sounded the keynote of press comment on the immigration question.

"The adoption of immigration law," says the Mainichi, "is substantially as unjust as was Germany's injustice toward Belgium. We in Japan are of the opinion that as long as that law remains in force our feeling toward the United States will not be improved. We are desirous that Mr. Bancroft will notice how resentful we are toward the United States and that he will consider whether the action taken by congress falls in with the spirit of justice or humanity. We are confident that Mr. Bancroft will use his influence for the furtherance of mutual understanding. It is in this sense and this sense alone that we extend our welcome to Mr. Bancroft."

The Kokumin, one of the leading papers of Tokyo, takes a slightly different attitude toward the immigration question, pointing out that Ambassador Bancroft should do what he can to mitigate Japan's resentment concerning it but suggested that rivalry between Japan and the United States on the continent of Asia, particularly in China, is far more formidable than Japanese animosity toward anti-Japanese agitation in California.

The question of the proposed maneuvers at Hawaii being in the forefront when Ambassador Bancroft arrived, several papers took occasion to remind him that Japan does not look upon this scheme with favor. The hope was expressed, in the words of the Kokumin, that Mr. Bancroft would "remonstrate with the American authorities concerned to forsake such a plan."

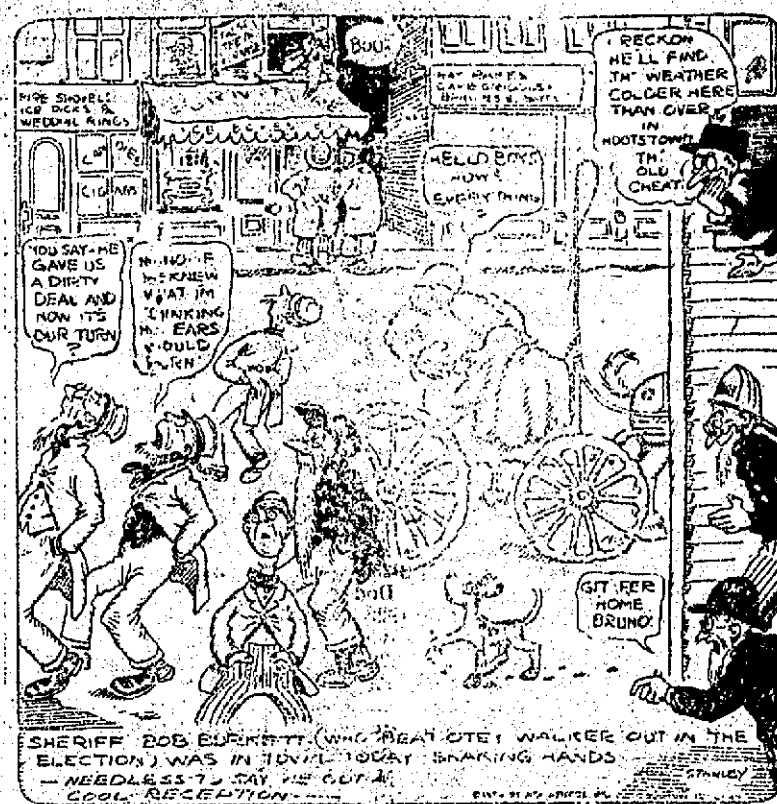

Although Ambassador Bancroft was received in official circles with all the courtesy due to this diplomatic rank and personal attainments, it cannot be said that press comment upon his arrival was enthusiastic.

HEALTH HINTS

We come this month with a real call to service to each and every resident of Clearfield County, who has the interests of the health and welfare of the community at heart. This, in our case has special reference to the children and all those afflicted with tuberculosis in any of its varied forms. The annual Christmas Seal Sale opened on November twenty-seventh at the Clearfield County Tuberculosis Society's headquarters. The success of our sale this year is vital to the maintenance of our work, which we feel sure every one is convinced has meant much more than ever before. There is some one in charge of the sale in your town that needs you to help make it go over and we urge you as a citizen, teacher, pupil, or whatever capacity to go to your town, to that your school, your town, your district, bears the record of last year's sale. Clearfield County's sale up to five cents or better per capita. We can go it and must do it. If you are not in touch with any local committee do not hesitate to write to "Xmas Seal Sale, Clearfield, Pa." No. 9 S. 3rd St. Clearfield, Pa. Any number of seals and advertising matter will be promptly sent you any sales, large or small, ten cents or ten dollars will help in the great task we have to accomplish. Do not let the fact that business has been dull and times rather hard for many, be a deterring factor or chill your enthusiasm. Remember it is just during such periods that the work of the Clearfield County Tuberculosis Society is the heaviest and a greater amount of money required to carry it on. Drive this point home to the people with whom you come in contact.

PNEUMONIA WEATHER

Altho the mild weather of the past few weeks has kept respiratory diseases at a low rate, a warning must be sounded for the coming months, when the weather will without doubt cause the mortality rate from pneumonia and similar ailments to increase. Anticipating this bad weather we urge particular care in observing "common sense" rules to avoid danger in overheated and crowded places where direct contact is the cause for the spread of ill. Acute "colds" spread rapidly through contact and especially so in public places where there is no proper ventilation. Persons with "colds", sore throats, or an employee suffering with such a condition to remain at home until acute symptoms have subsided. This will prevent spread of the disease among the others and will usually hasten recovery.

SCHOOL INSPECTIONS

There has been considerable activity on the part of Mrs. Gilbert and her committee workers to visit schools and weigh and measure the pupils. With the portable scale this has been possible at a number of the smaller rural schools where it is really needed most. After the pupils have been weighed and measured, the health talk and if feasible introduces the Modern Health Crusade. Since our last issue the following schools have been visited: Mt. Zion, La. Jose, New Washington, Kermoor, Karmhaus, Frenchville, LeCombes Mills, Coudriet, Congress Hill, Surveyor, Bald Hill, Hawk Run, Shawville, Croft, Ansonville, McCarty, Berwindale, Oak Ridge, and Carnwath. Assisting at various times with the work have been Miss Gracey, Mrs. Vance Welch, Miss Eva Snyder, Mrs. Buchanan, and Miss Kratzer.

MINUTES OF MEETING OF THE CLEARFIELD COUNTY TUBERCULOSIS SOCIETY

Thursday, October 30, 1924.
Rev. Crutcher, pastor of the Baptist Church, called the blessing.
After the usual 1 o'clock luncheon, Mr. Trostle, President, reported on order and expressed his pleasure in seeing the large number of workers gathered, there being 120 present, and all sections of the county represented.

Mrs. Gilbert gave a report on the work done since the last general meeting of the Society. Three representatives of the Society attended the Seal Sale conference held in Altoona and heard Dr. Phillips of the National Tuberculosis Association discuss ways and means of raising funds through the sale of Christmas Seals. Different schools were visited and the children weighed, and the usual findings about one-third of them under weight. Mrs. Gilbert recommended the placing of a scale in the Westover schools as they wish to start a nutrition class for the children most under weight.

The week of October 5th the Jolly Jester showed at the following places under the auspices of the Clearfield County Tuberculosis Society: Curwensville, Clearfield, Houtzdale, Irwona, Grassfield, Osceola Mills, Winburne, Woodland, Mahaffey, Madera and Morrisdale and about 14,000 persons saw the performance.

Mrs. Philip Reed told of placing the Modern Health Crusade in the Ansonville schools and the Osceola Mills schools, they being the only places from which requests had been received. Mrs. Reed thinks that a great deal of good can be accomplished by the use of Theresia Dandall's book "Health Training in Schools." She asked for a list of teachers who could be reached by the various chairman throughout the county in order to avoid overlapping in the seal sale.

Mr. Trostle here told that the Madera Health Crusade, which had accomplished a wonderful amount of good, had been discontinued because of improved health habits in very many of the country schools. In some cases they modify the Crusade work to suit their own particular needs.

Mr. Harry J. Schulman of the Delaware County Tuberculosis Association was the speaker at this meeting, having been sent by Mr. Deewees of the State Society to tell us how they raised their seal sale to an amount equaling 7.75 per person. In 1919 the total sale amounted to $5,200. The next January they began to get ready for a different way of conducting their campaign. By using the telephone directory and the city directories they made up a list of thousands of names each of whom was to be mailed $1.00 worth of seals with a letter asking them to send a check or return the seals. About 69 per cent of the seals were paid for, the balance were either returned or were used without paying or destroyed.

The list has been kept and each year changed so they know who moved away, who died, or who would not purchase seals. They also made another list called their $2 to $5 list, and a selective list of peoples or companies who would give more through a personal letter or personal solicitation. Through this method they raised their total seal sale to $12,600 in 1923 and expect it to amount to $15,000 this year.

In order to keep the fact that the Delaware County Tuberculosis Association is responsible for the fight against tuberculosis they have the name of their association printed on every piece of paper they send out, receipts are asked for all money spent for transporting patients to the sanatorium, whether it be for only eight cents or eight dollars. Their name is also placed in a prominent place on all Health Chores and Modern Health Crusade material used so that all the children will know who is back of them. When the time comes for the Seal Sale their advertising has been so well done the response is more than twice ours.

Mr. Schulman advised asking the Rotary Clubs for assistance, as one of the national requirements is to help crippled children and children with tuberculosis are numbered among cripples. He also advised confining each salesman to his own district; the use of the seals for one month before Christmas, as every person has more time the first of December than they have around the holidays; in the giving of buttons or some reward to children selling 500 worth of seals and to encourage the buying of seals by the children.

After Mr. Schulman finished his talk a number of questions were asked about his plan of conducting a seal sale and a number of suggestions made. It was reported that the people objected to children selling seals as a clean-up method. Father Ryan etc., should refrain from mingling with others. Often it would be a valuable service suffering with such a condition to remain at home until acute symptoms have subsided. This will prevent spread of the disease among the others and will usually hasten recovery.

Mr. A. B. Breth stated it was his understanding that Mr. Fred Thompson had given the theatre at Curwensville gratis for the show given by the Jolly Jester and moved that a letter of thanks be written telling of our appreciation of his generosity. This motion was amended and carried that a letter be written to all places where the Jolly Jester entertained because there was no charge made anywhere for light or for the use of the building. There was a slight change made in Clearfield for the cleaning of the theatre for the evening performance. Dr. Prentz was called on and made the following report:

1. That the American Red Cross and the National Tuberculosis Association would endeavor insofar as was practicable to prevent unnecessary overlapping.
2. That the Chapters and affiliated associations would again be advised that there was no official connection between the Christmas Seal Sale campaign of the National Tuberculosis Association and the Roll Call of the American Red Cross.
3. That at the end of 1924: the American Red Cross Roll Call would be held from Armistice Day, November 11, until Thanksgiving Day, November 27, and that the Tuberculosis Christmas Seal Sale would not begin until November 28.

4. That the Red Cross in its publicity and instructions to local Chapters would call attention specifically to the fact that the Roll Call would end Thanksgiving Day.
5. That the National Tuberculosis Association would again call to the attention of its affiliated associations the importance of not launching the Seal Sale prior to Thanksgiving Day and that it would endeavor to prevent its affiliated associations from actually selling seals prior to Thanksgiving Day.

6. That the American Red Cross would again call to the attention of its Chapters the importance of carrying on their campaign after Thanksgiving Day and that it would endeavor to prevent the carrying out of a Roll Call during December.

We will start our Seal Sale promptly on Thursday November 27, 1924. Mr. Trostle thanked Mr. Schulman for his practical suggestions and proposed the slogan "Supersize all Previous Records" for this year's campaign; being our hope that we can someday raise enough money to employ a trained worker throughout the year.

Nothing further to be taken up by the Society, the meeting adjourned.

THE CHRISTMAS SEAL

Insects Hibernates Over Winter in Crop Refuse

After a crop is harvested there is usually some portion of the plant which is allowed to remain on the land. In this refuse the insects peculiar to the crop often feed and multiply until killing frost, and then hibernate over winter, inflicting injury to similar crops on the same land the next year. For this reason, all the remnants of a crop such as stubble, vines, leaves, etc., should be removed from the field as soon after it is harvested as possible.

Flushing Ewes Helps to Increase Crop of Ewes

Sheep owners interested in increasing the lamb crop should flush ewes before breeding season, says C. G. Miller, sheep specialist, Kansas State Agricultural College, who calls attention to results secured in tests with 17 groups of ewes. Ewes not fed grain during the breeding season gained 17 pounds and had a 120 per cent lamb crop. Those getting feed of various kinds gained 8 pounds per head and had a 147 per cent lamb crop. In terms of 1,000 sheep this would mean 200 more lambs. The ewes fed only one-half pound of grain per day at that time. It made little difference how the ewes were fed so long as they gained. Some got extra pasture and some various mixtures of corn, oats, bran and linseed meal. In the grain-fed lots, as well as in the pasture lots, some were above the 147 per cent average and some below.

Store Seed Corn in Dry Place With Plenty of Air

Seed corn should be stored in a dry place with good air circulation, neither too hot nor too cold. An airy attic room will serve to store enough for home use although it has the objection that it may bring mice into the house. The seed ears may be covered with dry threshed oats in a bin and allowed to remain there until spring. Most corn growers are familiar with the plan of strapping the ears and hanging them outdoors on the sunny side of a building or tying two or three ears together by the husks and hanging them that way. Such methods of curing are usually successful unless the sunshine becomes too hot and causes germination of the corn. The strings of seed ears may be suspended from the rafters of a crib or over a garage.

Prune Grape Vines and Get Substantial Growth

When pruning grape vines do not leave too much wood. The object of the early pruning is to develop a vigorous root system and establish a system of training. Overwintering during the second and third years is detrimental to the vines. Do not permit the vines to bear the second year and only the more vigorous should be permitted to bear the third year. To prune vines after their first season's growth in the vineyard all the canes or shoots that grew the previous summer are cut away but one and that is cut back to two buds or eyes, the same kind of pruning as that given the tops of vines at the time of setting. The effect of this heavy pruning is to concentrate the whole energy of the vines into the development of one strong vigorous shoot. A number of shoots usually start from the two eyes left on the vines but all should be removed but one. This one is to form the permanent trunk of the vine and should be tied to the lower wire of the trellis and again to the upper wire. If vigorous it is usually pinched off as soon as it reaches the height of the top wire to force out laterals; but if only moderately vigorous no summer pinching should be done.

Casting Lots

Following a Meunonite tradition, the choice of a deacon to represent a branch of the church has been made by lot, in the belief that the man to whom the lot falls is a divine choice.

Explain Commendation

Whenever you commend, add your reasons for doing so; it is this which distinguishes the approbation of a man of sense from the flattery of sycophants and adulation of fools.

Clever Buffalo Chemist Says New Treatment for Piles Never Fails

Buffalo, N. Y.—For years the generally accepted treatment for Hemorrhoids or Piles has been by the insertion of many so-called antiseptics and astringents into the rectum. Such treatments, while they in many cases gave relief, never reached or acted on the cause of the trouble and this was often true of surgical operations.

You've got to attack the real cause of the Piles and not the piles themselves and you've got to do it from a constitutional standpoint and this is just what the Hamadala treatment Hamadala Co., Box 445, Buffalo, N. Y.

Lime to Neutralize Acidity of Soils

No Reason for Discriminating Against Any Material.

Ground limestone, screenings, burned lime, hydrated lime, air-slaked lime, shells, refuse lime and many more all be used for neutralizing soil acidity. Which of these different forms of lime should be used in any particular case should be determined by the cost at which a given amount of calcium carbonate or its equivalent, in a reasonably fine condition, can be delivered to the soil. Aside from this, there is no good reason for discriminating against any of these materials. Neither should magnesium limestone be considered either more or less valuable than the ordinary calcium limestone.

Theoretically, 100 pounds of finely ground limestone, 50 pounds of freshly burned lime, 74 pounds of hydrated lime and about 90 pounds of air-slaked lime have equal acid neutralizing power. In calculating the cost, the price of the material, the freight, if any, the cost of hauling and the labor involved in spreading it on the land, should be taken into account. If finely ground limestone can be secured delivered at the nearest railroad station at $3 per ton, then, allowing for the smaller cost of handling equivalent amounts of the more concentrated forms, fresh burnt lime should be secured at the station for $6, hydrated lime for $4.50, and air-slaked lime for about $3.50 per ton.

Usually ground limestone will be the most economical and most satisfactory material to use. In considering the price, the fineness of grinding and the freight rate must be taken into account. The fine material is worth more than the coarse. If coarse material is used, it will require more to get the same immediate acid neutralizing effect. A good grade of ground limestone should be fine enough so that all will pass through a 100-mesh sieve. The objection to coarse material, such as screenings, is that it acts too slowly. Only the fine dust will act immediately.—Purdue College of Agriculture.

Study Record Book Data to Keep Track of Sires

One way to stimulate interest of the dairymen in the value of better sires can be accomplished by making proper use of the data which is found in the herd record book headings, provided that they have been filled in completely and properly. Get the name and number of each cow's sire, and the dam's name if possible. In many instances the sire may be "gone and forgotten," but one can usually find out which cows are sired by a certain bull, and in that way determine the value of the sires formerly heading the herd.

The ideal data on sires is arrived at by comparing his daughters with their dams. Know your bull through his daughters. The daughters should show a decided improvement over their dams in respect to their production and conformation if selected for the future herd. When you have found the rating of a sire and he has proved to be exceptionally good, and is still better, continue using him in the herd. Too often a good sire goes to the block before his value is known. Breeders should exchange sires or loan them to someone until their daughters can be tested. There is no better way to make cow testing work more effective than to promote the use of better sires.

It Is Very Profitable to Rat-Proof Any Crib

Corn is never so cheap that one can afford to feed it to the rats. The present price of corn makes it very profitable to rat proof any crib. A good concrete foundation will keep rats from working under the floor, and a strip of hardware cloth and a strip of tin above it will keep them from going through the walls. The hardware cloth prevents the rats gnawing through the lower part of the walls, and the tin prevents them from climbing higher.

SOAKS RIGHT IN AND LIMBERS UP STIFF JOINTS

Pharmacists call it "Joint-Ease" because it's for Swollen, Sore, Painful, Creaky Joints Only

It took a good many years to get together a combination of pain subduing and swelling reducing agents declared to be the one remedy that almost instantly penetrates through skin and flesh and starts right in to make swollen, inflamed, creaky, pain racked joints as good as new.

They call this new and wonderful preparation "Joint-Ease" because the medical man who turned the trick worked for years to perfect some low-priced remedy that would really benefit the millions of people who have one or more joints that need helpful attention.

So "Joint-Ease" is prepared only for people who have a swollen, painful, creaky, distorted or stiff joint, whether it be in knee, elbow, shoulder, ankle, neck or finger and whether it is caused by rheumatism or something else.

Of course, it can't help but put an end to such superficial ailments as lumbago, neuralgia, neuritis, aching muscles, stitch in the side, crick in the neck or sore feet because of its penetrating action, but what it is really recommended for is joint ailments of any nature whatever.

Ask for a tube of "Joint-Ease." You can use it several times in one evening for quick results, because it goes right through skin with only a few seconds rubbing. It surely is a swift penetrator and when it gets under the skin, it starts right in to clean up all joint troubles.

Stewart Drug Co. dispenses it daily for about 60 cents a tube, as do first class druggists everywhere.

Always remember when Joint-Ease gets in joint agony gets out—quick.
